PREFACE.

A FEW explanations to the friends of music, who may become acquainted with this work, may be of service in answering any queries which may arise relative to its characteristic features. When my first work (The Sacred Minstrel) appeared, it was thought that the numerous contributions it contained, from my own pen, might, in the esteem of some, ultimate to the prejudice of the work. The auspicious intervention of some counteracting but unknown cause, (doubtless,) saved the work from what seemed (to such individuals) its inevitable fate. Respecting this point, however, as constituting either in a general or particular sense, a necessary and valid objection to a work, I would say, however numerous the contributors to any book of church music may be, no author can feel safe in setting aside his own judgment to admit, without proper discrimination, whatever might be offered for his work, even from the most renowned musicians. A piece might be presented him which, for elaborateness and beauty of harmonic structure, would, to the ear of the professor, be considered superlatively fine and exquisite, but for any purpose of utility, it would be absolutely worthless. Therefore, whatever goes into his book, must of necessity pass the test of his own scrutiny and inspection; he must judge of its availability for practical use, must see whether it embodies sufficient character, beauty, and originality to commend it to the taste and approval of the critical and discerning, into whose hands his work may fall. Again, such tunes as are deservedly popular, he cannot always command; he is, therefore, thrown upon his own resources for nearly all to fill the pages of his work. There is one point deserving of attention respecting tunes in common psalmody, to which are appended the names of numerous celebrated European composers. It should be remembered that these persons seldom wrote other music than Oratorios, Operas, Symphonies, &c., which do not admit always of the most complete and literal transformation into plain metrical tunes, without many interpolations and abridgments, which materially interfere with their perfect identity and originality, as emanating from their attributed sources. Again, it is sometimes thought that an author who has written much, should not republish in successive works, even his best and most useful tunes. "Give us something new," is the demand. In answer to this objection, I would first inquire of its propounder, did you ever find in a book of church music all the pieces of one writer of EQUAL MERIT? Again, are you not aware that a tune which the author might not think fit to republish, because you have long been familiar with it in a former work of his, another writer would consider a "gem," could he offer it to you in a work of his own? There is no individual, poet, painter, sculptor, statesman, or what else he may be, but that has some one production, or at most a comparative few, which both himself and others will claim transcends all his other efforts. A composer of music forms no exception to this general principle; he can by no possibility write to the same words several tunes of equal excellence. Again, all words do not admit of equally perfect affinity with music. Or, to all words you cannot so interblend sentiment with song, that the combined effect will be enhanced by their union. Consequently, the book that is made up of judicious selections from former works, together with the best specimens of subsequent production, is incomparably more valuable than can be produced by any other means. A particular point upon which I am ever solicitous, is, that music of my own writing (however inconsiderable its merit) should always be thoroughly studied and judged of by its own standard. Tunes like Vesper, Ingalls, Twilight, Vienna, Peace, Evening, etc., can never be understood if divested of the least shade of their intended character. While I am aware that the tastes of different individuals are as diverse nearly as their personal appearance, and that it is in vain and unreasonable to expect all to attach the same value to any one given style of music, yet I feel it is still a desideratum that that which is most intrinsically characteristic of a work, should be rightly understood and appreciated. The goodly number of short Sentences the work contains, will be found, it is believed, quite sufficient for all ordinary purposes for church use. The Anthems are not difficult, yet they are of a character better adapted for occasions like Thanksgiving, Ordinations, Dedications, and for Concerts of Sacred Music, than for the more strict use of the church. Those persons acquainted with my "CHORAL ANTHEMS," will recognize in the Anthems of the Golden Lyre, a vein of relationship which they will regard according to their estimate of the former work. After all that can be inculcated with respect to the mere mechanical use of music, if we go no further, we can realize nothing of that which is elevating and sublime in its true nature and effect. To the composer who writes, or the performer who strives for perfection of execution, merely to gratify the desire of renown, to him the soul of music has no delightful and abiding charms. It must and will be as evanescent and transitory as the desire which seeks it is superficial and grovelling. If the "kingdom of heaven is peace and righteousness," and if that can dwell "within us," deeply is it to be lamented that music, so redolent of benign and sanctifying influence, should be diverted from its high and appropriate end of refining and elevating the soul to that which is heavenly and divine. And when it leads its followers into the realms where its own nature would seek to go, then will the ideal entrancement of celestial harmonies to them become a living reality.

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 1850.

ELEMENTS OF VOCAL MUSIC.

NOTE TO SCHOLARS.—If you have a good voice, and can sing readily by imitation, if you prefer, you may omit the pains of learning to sing theoretically, upon condition that you are willing to forego the advantage of singing at sight from a knowledge of the rules, and always depend upon others to teach you what you attempt to sing. Should you wisely prefer the opposite, however, all the rules necessary for you to commit to memory, to enable you to sing mechanically any piece of ordinary difficulty, are FEW and SIMPLE. Do you inquire, "Why, then, so difficult to sing AT ONCE after the rules are understood?" Because (and no process of instruction can obviate it) after you have learned arithmetically that a particular note or number of notes are sung at a beat, you have still to learn a concomitant part, which is to DO it, after you have first learned the theory.

NOTE TO TEACHER.—In adopting the elements as here laid down, your preconceived views as respects other methods of classification for instruction may induce you at first to hesitate in following implicitly the arrangement adopted; perceiving, as you will, that the whole subject of elementary instruction is abridged and reduced in many particulars very much from what you may have been accustomed to. Instead of giving at once, the definitions of the several departments upon which the subject is based, the principles themselves are first defined, then follow the names of them. The frequent Notes interspersed, will afford comments on all departures from established usages; showing, it is believed, reasons which will commend themselves to the candor and judgment of all unbiased and discerning minds.

CHAPTER I.

NOTES.

§ I. Notes represent musical sounds. Seven kinds are used; generally, however, but six.

§ II. Their names and value are as follows:

A Whole Note 𝅝 is equal to two 𝅗𝅥 𝅗𝅥 Halves,

to four ♩ ♩ ♩ ♩ Quarters,

to eight ♫ ♫ Eighths,

to sixteen 𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯𝅘𝅥𝅯 Sixteenths,

to thirty-two 𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰 𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰𝅘𝅥𝅰 Thirty-seconds.

DOTS.

§ III. A Dot placed after a note adds to it one half its length.

A 𝅝. equals 𝅗𝅥 ♩ or ♩ ♩ ♩; a ♩. equals ♩ ♪ or ♩ ♩ ♩; a ♪. equals 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 or 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯, &c.

§ IV. Notes twice dotted are three quarters as long again.

A 𝅝.. equals 𝅗𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥.; a 𝅗𝅥.. equals 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥.; a 𝅘𝅥.. equals 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥.

QUESTIONS.

§ 1. What characters represent musical sounds? How many kinds are there used? § 2. What are the names and values of notes? § 3. By what means can you make a note one half longer? A whole note dotted receives the additional value of what note? § 4. How can a note be made three quarters longer? A whole note dotted twice receives the additional value of what two notes?

CHAPTER II.

VARIOUS CHARACTERS EXPLAINED.

§ V. Any three notes of a kind, having the figure 3 placed over or under them, are equal to the time of two.

Thus, 𝅘𝅥 3 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 are equal to 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥,

𝅘𝅥𝅯 3 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 are equal to 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯, &c., &c.

§ VI. The figure 6 reduces six of the same kind to the time of four.

Thus 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 6 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 are equal to 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥,

𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 6 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 are equal to 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯 𝅘𝅥𝅯.

§ VII. The manner of writing notes whether with their stems up or down, thus, 𝅗𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥𝅯, or thus, 𝅝 𝅗𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥𝅯, is immaterial; their value is the same: also whether their hooks are connected, 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥, or detached ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪.

§ VIII. A Slur, ⁀, connects two or more notes sung to the same syllable, thus, 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅗𝅥. Eighths, Sixteenths, Thirty-seconds, and Sixty-fourths are slurred by uniting their hooks thus, 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅗𝅥, or 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅘𝅥 𝅗𝅥.

A - - - - - - - - men.

A - - - - men.

A - - - - men.

QUESTIONS.

§ 5. What effect has the figure 3 placed over or under three notes of the same kind? § 6. What effect has the figure 6 placed over or under six notes? § 7. Is it material whether the stems of notes point up or down? Is their value the same whether the hooks are connected or separate? § 8. What character shows that two or more notes are sung to one syllable? How are notes having hooks, slurred?

CHAPTER III.

RESTS.

§ IX. Rests are marks of silence. All notes have rests of the same name and duration as the notes themselves.

A Whole Note rest hangs upon a line, - - - - 𝄻

A Half Note rest stands upon a line, - - - - - 𝄼

A Quarter rest, the wing turns to the right, - 𝄽

Eighth, wing turns to the left, - - - - - - - 𝄾

Sixteenth, two wings to the left, - - - - - - 𝄿

Thirty-second, three wings to the left, - - - - 𝅀

Sixty-fourth, four wings to the left, - - - - - 𝅁

NOTE 1.—It is indispensable that each scholar should practise writing down the notes and rests (out of school), until they can transcribe them all thout hesitancy from memory. A slight experience will convince one how liable th and Eighth rests are to be confounded when only glanced at in reading a lly by the inexperienced singer.

NOTE.—In this work the Half and Quarter rests have been slightly modified in form, so as to render them more distinguishable from the Whole and Eighth rests; which, in the old forms, are almost universally confounded.

§ X. Rests may be dotted the same as notes; thus,

QUESTIONS.

§ 9. What are Rests? What besides the note itself represents its silent duration? How do you distinguish a Whole Note rest? How a Half? Quarter? Eighth? Sixteenth? Thirty-second? Sixty-fourth? § 10. In what way can you lengthen the duration of rests? Can a rest be dotted more than once?

CHAPTER IV.

THE STAFF, CLEFS, AND OTHER CHARACTERS.

NOTE.—Teacher say to his class: "Should I write a note upon a piece of paper or on the wall, without anything being added to determine its pitch, could we tell how high or how low to sound it?" (Class will answer, We could NOT.) "Then it appears that something is necessary to enable us to tell how high or low notes should be written in order to receive a certain pitch of sound. For this purpose we have a Staff."

§ XI. A Staff is used to write music upon.

§ XII. The Lines and Spaces of the staff are named by the first seven letters of the alphabet.

NOTE.—The term Degree for designating the lines and spaces of the staff is found superfluous, consequently it is dispensed with.

§ XIII. On the Treble, Alto, and Tenor staves, the letters applying to the lines are  , to the spaces (they spell)  .

§ XIV. On the Base staff the alphabet commences on the lower space.

§ XVII. When more than the first seven letters are wanted above or below the staff, no additional ones are used, but these same are repeated.

§ XVIII. To find what letter a note is on when above or below the staff, call the letter which the note is on one, and count each line and space until you arrive at eight, within the staff; this last will be the same as that one from which you commenced to count.

Eight comes on B, the note above the staff is consequently B.

Eight comes on B, the note below the staff is B.

Apply the same process to the Base staff.

§ XIX. The Clef distinguishes the different parts in music which are sung together. For the Treble and Alto the TREBLE CLEF is used, 𝄞. (The Tenor may also have the same.)

NOTE.—Teacher should avoid calling the Treble clef the "G" clef, as, in its present form, it has no signification, and only tends to bewilder the scholar. Simply say, TREBLE clef, BASE clef, TENOR clef.

(In this work the following clef is used for Tenor, 𝄡). For the Base, the BASE CLEF, 𝄢.

§ XX. The relation of the several parts as respects pitch is thus:

§ XXI. Bars, 𝄀, are drawn across the staff to divide the music into Measures.

§ XXII. In church music the Double Bar, 𝄁, shows the end of a line of poetry, or Strain.

The heavens de - clare thy glo - ry, Lord.

Double Bars thus, - - - - 𝄂, form a Close to a tune.

§ XXIII. A Brace, }, connects the parts sung together in a piece of music.

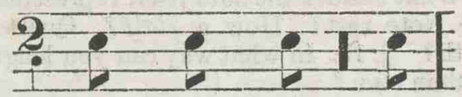
§ XXIV. A Score consists of two or more parts connected by a Brace.

NOTE.—In this work the double bar will not extend across the entire five lines of the staff, except the measure preceding it be full; as,

Where it is used only to show the end of a strain, and does not divide the time into a full measure, it will always be found thus:



This arrangement has been adopted to prevent the almost certain liability of a scholar supposing a measure preceding a double bar necessarily full; which, in fact, is seldom the case.

QUESTIONS.

§ 11. What are the five lines and four spaces called upon which music is written? § 12. By what are the lines and spaces of the staff named? § 13. What letters apply to the lines of the Treble and Tenor staves? What letters to the spaces of the Treble and Tenor? NOTE.—Teacher see the letters of the staff are thoroughly committed to memory by his class. § 14. In the Base staff, on what space does the alphabet commence? § 15. In counting the lines and spaces of the staff, where do you commence? § 16. Upon what are notes written when placed above or below the staff? § 19. What character distinguishes the different parts of music? What clef is used for Treble and Alto? § 20. What letter in the Base staff corresponds with the first line of the Tenor? What one in the Tenor, with the first one in the Treble staff? § 21. Of what use are Bars in music? Of what use is the Double Bar? § 22. In church music, what does the Double Bar denote? § 23. What is a Brace? § 24. What is a Score?

CHAPTER V.

TIME.

§ XXV. Musical sounds may be long or short, which distinction forms the department of TIME.

NOTE.—Teacher illustrate § 25 (the first above), by giving two sounds with his voice or upon an instrument, one long and the other short, stating that, in a general sense, that means Time; but in a specific sense, it is that influence which causes a choir of singers or a company of soldiers to move together as one voice, or with one step. Again, you will find an advantage in dispensing with the term "Rhythm," when you speak of Time, as it will free the minds of your scholars from all ambiguity of meaning on your part, and render you at once understood.

§ XXVI. Time is represented by these characters, $\mathbf{C}$ $\left(\frac{4}{4}\right)$ $\mathbf{\dot{C}}$ $\left(\frac{2}{2}\right)$, or by figures thus, $\frac{2}{2}$ $\frac{2}{4}$ $\frac{4}{2}$ $\frac{4}{4}$ $\frac{3}{2}$ $\frac{3}{4}$ $\frac{6}{2}$ $\frac{6}{4}$, or by figures with a small note under them, thus, $\frac{2}{\cdot}$ $\frac{3}{\cdot}$ $\frac{2}{\cdot\cdot}$ $\frac{3}{\cdot\cdot}$.

§ XXVII. In this work, the figure in all cases denotes the number of beats to a measure, and the small note under the figure is the note which receives a beat and is called the beat note.

When the time changes after the commencement of a piece, the figure only (without the note underneath,) will be used.

MANNER OF BEATING TIME.

Two quarter time, - - - - $\frac{2}{\cdot}$, down and up.

Three quarter time, - - - - $\frac{3}{\cdot}$, down, left, up.

Two quarter dotted, - - - - $\frac{2}{\cdot\cdot}$, down and up.

Three quarter dotted, - - - $\frac{3}{\cdot\cdot}$, down, left, up.

QUESTIONS.

§ 25. What department is derived from the difference in the length of sounds? § 26. How is Time represented? Which of these three methods is used in this work? § 27. What does the figure over the small note denote? What is understood by the small note under the figure?

CHAPTER VI.

MELODY.

§ XXVIII. Musical sounds may be high or low, forming a second department, relative to their pitch, called Melody.

NOTE.—Teacher here say, "We have observed that musical sounds may be long and short, forming the department of Time; you now perceive they may be high or low, (giving an example from voice or instrument); this forms the second department, called Melody."

§ XXIX. There are but Seven Primary Sounds, from which all music is derived. The Eighth is but a repetition of the first, and forms, with the seven, an Octave.

§ XXX. The Scale consists of the Octave, or eight sounds.

§ XXXI. An Interval is the difference in pitch between any two sounds; as, from 1 to 5 is an interval of the 5th, &c. The distance from one sound to another in ascending or descending the scale will here be called a Degree, instead of "tone" or "step."

§ XXXII. There are two scales in music, the Major and Minor.

FORM OF THE MAJOR SCALE.

From 7 } to 8, a half degree.

From 6 to 7, a degree.

From 5 to 6, a degree.

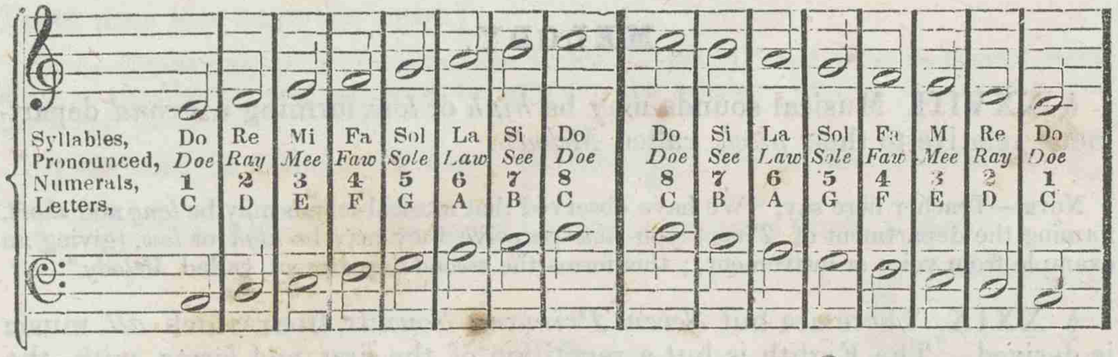
From 4 } to 5, a degree.
From 3 } to 4, a half degree.

From 2 to 3, a degree.

From 1 to 2, a degree.

§ XXXIII. Major Scale applied to the Staff first commences on C.

APPLICATION OF THE MAJOR SCALE TO THE STAFF.



NOTE TO TEACHER.—N. B. All of you who have had sufficient experience will readily bear testimony to the servitude a class of singers are under to the use of syllables before applying the words to a piece of music. Whenever an untried tune is named, the first and universal feeling with singers unaccustomed to a different practice is, "Let us first sing it by note, until we have got the run of it." Many of the most eminent and successful teachers with whom we have of late conferred on the subject, agree that it is far preferable for a class never to use syllables at all, even in singing the scale. Consequently, when tunes are taken up, there is no embarrassment attendant on the transition from the use of syllables to the immediate application of words.

§ XXXIV. A Sharp, ♯, placed before a note, ♯𝅝, raises its pitch half a degree.

§ XXXV. A Flat, ♭, lowers the pitch of a sound half a degree.

§ XXXVI. A Natural, ♮, restores a note having been made flat or sharp to its original pitch.

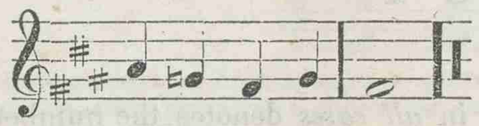
§ XXXIX. A Signature is the flats or sharps placed at the commencement of a tune.

§ XL. A Natural Signature is where tunes have neither flats nor sharps at their commencement.

NOTE.—Teacher refer the class to tunes in the book, beginning with those in the natural signature, and call their attention to all the different signatures in use, saying, "What signature has this tune? What has this?" &c. Do the same with Time, saying, "What time has this tune? what is its signature," &c., until both are understood.

§ XLI. Accidentals are flats, sharps, and naturals placed before notes in a tune, and they affect all notes on the same letters with themselves in the measure, unless contradicted by a natural, flat, or sharp.

Natural ACCIDENTAL.



Flat ACCIDENTAL.

Sharp ACCIDENTAL.

ACCIDENTAL contradicted.

§ XLII. Accidentals extend their influence to a succeeding measure when the first note in it is the same as the last in the preceding.

Thus, Or thus.

QUESTIONS.

§ 28. What is the department relative to the pitch of sounds called? § 29. How many Primary Sounds are there? From what is all music derived? By adding the eighth to the seven sounds, what is formed? § 30. Of what does the scale consist? § 31. What is an Interval? § 32. What two scales are there in music? § 33. On what letter does the scale commence when first applied to the staff? § 34. What character placed before a note, raises it half a degree? § 35. What lowers it half a degree? § 36. What restores a sound made flat or sharp to its original pitch? § 37. What raises a sound a whole degree? § 38. What lowers it a whole degree? § 39. What is the signature to a tune? § 40. What constitutes the natural signature? § 41. What are Accidentals? How far do they extend their influence? § 42. Under what condition does an accidental extend its influence into a succeeding measure?

CHAPTER VII.

THE SIGNATURES SHOWING THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE SCALES.

§ XLIII. The scale is always the same, let it commence upon what letter it may.

§ XLIV. Do is always the first syllable of the Major Scale, and La of the Minor.

§ XLV. The Key-note of a piece is the last note in the Base, from which the several parts derive their pitch; in the Major scale it is always Do, in the Minor La.

§ XLVI. To change the place of the scale (or the syllable Do) upon the staff, the signature must change, as the scale takes a new signature every time it is moved from one letter to another.

NOTE.—When a class commences singing by note in the different signatures (if you adopt the practice), they will often say upon taking a new signature, "Where is Do in this tune?" To answer this question, let them always refer to the following table of signatures, showing the commencement of the scales.

§ XLVII. Transposition is the moving of the scale from one letter to another upon the staff by changing the signature.

§ XLVIII. Do is always the first letter above the last added sharp, and five letters above (or four below) the last added flat.

QUESTIONS.

§ 43. Is the scale always of the same form, whatever letter it may commence upon? § 44. What syllable is always the first of the major scale? What of the minor? § 45. What is the key note to a tune? What syllable is it in the major scale? What in the minor? § 46. In order to change the place of the scale upon the staff, what else must be changed?—Natural signature, where is Do? On D, what? On A? On E? On B? On F♯? On C♯? Do on F, what signature? On B♭? E♭? A♭? D♭? G♭? C♭? § 47. What is Transposition? § 48. How may the place of Do be found?

CHAPTER VIII.

FORCE.

NOTE.—Teacher says: "We have seen that sounds may be long and short, forming TIME; high and low, forming MELODY: now in the last instance we notice that they may be soft and loud, forming the third department, FORCE or strength of sound"—giving an example of the last, by striking a sound soft and loud.

§ XLIX. An Organ Tone is a sound of uniform power from beginning to end.

§ L. An Increase (or Crescendo) commences soft and ends loud.

§ LI. A Diminish (or Diminuendo) begins loud and ends soft.

§ LII. A Swell combines the Increase and Diminish.

MUSICAL CHARACTERS EXPLAINED.

§ LIII. A Whole Note Rest, 𝄻, denotes a silent measure in all varieties of time.

§ LIV. A double bar seldom divides the time in a measure. When the measure before a double bar is full, it then divides the time.

Here the double bar divides the time. In this instance it does not.

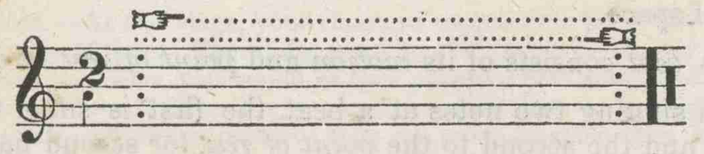
NOTE.—This explanation of the double bar is designed for other works, not this.

§ LV. A suspension of the time is allowable at the double bar.

§ LVI. A Hold, 𝄐, placed over notes, rests, bars, or a vacant part of the measure, denotes a suspension of the time, at the discretion of the performer.

EXAMPLE.

§ LVII. A Repeat shows what part of a piece is sung twice, and is marked by dots in the following manner:



QUESTIONS.

§ 49. What is an Organ Tone? § 50. An Increase or Crescendo? § 51. A Diminish or Diminuendo? § 52. A Swell? § 53. What rest is used to fill a silent measure in all varieties of time? § 54. Under what circumstances does a double bar divide the time of a measure? § 55. When is a suspension of the time allowable? § 56. What character placed over notes, rests, bars, &c., denotes a suspension of the time? § 57. How is a part of a piece of music marked, that is to be sung twice?

CHAPTER IX.

MINOR AND CHROMATIC SCALES.

§ LVIII. In all cases, La, the 6th of the Major Scale, is taken as 1 in the Minor Scale; that is, in singing the Major Scale by numerals, when you arrive at 6 (La) instead of calling it 6, change it to 1, as the first of the Minor Scale, then the new (Minor) scale extends to 8 above, having the same number of intervals that the Major Scale has. Bear in mind that the Minor Scale, though its intervals do not occur in the same order as in the Major, is yet MADE from the Major Scale.

§ LIX. In ascending the Minor Scale, the 7th interval (Sol) is raised half a degree; in descending, it is sung as Sol, the 5th in Major Scale.

MINOR SCALE ASCENDING.

MINOR SCALE APPLIED TO THE STAFF.

MAJOR AND MINOR SCALES.

§ LX. The Chromatic Scale is formed by dividing the five degrees and adding to them the two half degrees of the Major Scale; making twelve intervals and thirteen sounds.

NOTE.—Sing the syllables to the chromatic scale without changing the vowel, as Do, Dee, &c. The acute ear of any Teacher will soon convince him of the propriety of this course, if he will try the experiment of having his class practise the chromatic scale, alternately changing the vowel, and singing it the same, as Do, Do, to the natural and sharp intervals. The objection to changing it is, the scholar is too apt to mistake a change of the vowel for a change in the sound.

CHROMATIC SCALE.

QUESTIONS.

§ 58. What interval in the major scale is taken as one in the minor? § 59. In ascending the Minor Scale, what interval is made sharp? In descending, how do you sing the 7th (Sol)? How far from 1 to 2 is it in the minor Scale? From 2 to 3? From 3 to 4? From 4 to 5? From 5 to 6? From 6 to 7? From 7 to 8? Descending, how far from 8 to 7? From 7 to 6? From 6 to 5? From 5 to 4? From 4 to 3? From 3 to 2? From 2 to 1? The minor 3d is equal to what numeral in the major scale? The minor 5th equals what numeral in the major scale? § 60. Of what is the chromatic scale formed?

CHAPTER X.

EXPLANATIONS IN FORCE AND TIME.

§ LXI. Accent is a stress of voice given to the down beat.

§ LXII. In the following forms of $\frac{3}{4}$ time, the accent gives place to the Swell tone.

§ LXIII. In beating time, the hand should move promptly, and not over eight inches of space.

§ LXIV. A beat consists of its motion and point of rest.

§ LXV. In singing two notes at a beat, the first is sung to the motion (or first half), and the second to the point of rest (or second half).

§ LXVI. A tune commencing in the following form of measure, would be said to commence at the LEFT point of rest.

EXAMPLE.

At the up point of rest.

At the down point of rest.

QUESTIONS.

§ 61. What is Accent? § 62. Measure in three quarter time commencing with a half note, what is the ACCENT changed to? § 63. In what manner should the hand move in beating time? § 64. Of what does a beat consist? § 65. Which of two notes sung at a beat is sung to the motion? What is the second sung to?

CHAPTER XI.

DIRECTIONS PREPARATORY TO BEATING TIME.

NOTE TO TEACHER.—At this stage, your class are supposed to have only a theoretical, not a practical knowledge of time. Therefore, were you to commence singing tunes, expecting the class to sing and beat time, you would at once perceive that they know nothing as yet of uniform motion. To teach them this, you must require them to beat, while you sing or play some spirited air; when you perceive they can move together, then introduce the air of Old Hundred, Dundee, or other melody they are familiar with; this they can beat while they sing, as their undivided attention can be directed to the time alone, if they are acquainted with the tune. This incipient process of leading them to a knowledge of practical time, and enabling them to appreciate a given movement, will eventually insure their complete success in describing correct time.

Teacher and Class commence beating time; when all move together, teacher sing whole notes, asking class as follows:—

TEACHER. What note do I sing?
CLASS. Whole note, because four beats to a note.
TEACHER. (Sing Halves, two, three, or more, and say) What notes?
CLASS. Halves, because two beats to a note.
TEACHER. (Sing Quarters, and say) What notes?
CLASS. Quarters, one beat to a note.
TEACHER. (Sing Eighths, and say) What notes?
CLASS. Eighths, because two notes at a beat.
TEACHER. (Sing Sixteenths, and say) What notes?
CLASS. Sixteenths, four at a beat; &c., &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Teacher sing the following, while beating with the class, and question as above. Class answer without the book, , what notes?  , what notes? , what notes? , what notes? , what notes? , what notes? (triplets, three at a beat.)  , what notes? After proceeding in this manner until the class understand practically the application of time to notes, then may be introduced the following exercises.

CHAPTER XII.

GENERAL REMARKS UPON SINGING.

§ LXVII. Expression is of no less importance in singing, than Elocution is to reading or speaking.

§ LXVIII. To sing with expression, requires a knowledge and observation of those principles in music and language, upon which a correct taste is founded. The proper use and control of the voice, a distinct articulation of words, and strict attention to the rules of accent and emphasis, together with a thorough acquaintance with the science of music, constitute the chief requisites to good singing.

§ LXIX. The Voice.—The necessary qualities of the Musical Voice are fulness, flexibility, and purity. To acquire these, it is important to practise the Swell and Explosive tone. In the former, great care is necessary to avoid changing the quality of tone. To prevent this, the organs of sound should be held firmly without change or relaxation while the sound continues.

§ LXX. Taking Breath in singing should be done as seldom as possible, and never between the syllables of a single word, nor where it will interrupt and destroy the meaning of a sentence.

§ LXXI. Opening of the Mouth.—There is no one direction more necessary to be complied with in singing, than opening the mouth so far as to be able to utter a sound in a free and unrestrained manner. The impossibility of attempting to articulate distinctly all words in speaking, with the mouth scarcely opened, is no greater than in singing. Experience shows, that one of the most prominent faults in singing generally, is the habit of keeping the mouth too little open, and in too fixed and uniform a position.

§ LXXII. Articulation.—In music of ordinary rapidity, or of the chant-ant character, there should never be a want of distinctness in articulation. Choral music, the sound being sustained so long upon the different notes, does not admit of giving language so perfect an utterance. To render articulation so distinct in singing as to make words intelligible, the speaking organs must be used in such a manner that their appearance to the eye will indicate the word spoken, without the aid of the ear.

§ LXXIII. A rule in singing which should never be deviated from in the speaking of words, is, to commence and sustain a sound without variation, on the radical sound of the vowel; leaving its vanish to the final articulation of the syllable. The word "day," for instance, should not be pronounced da - - - e - - - y, as would be the case if the vanish of the vowel be dwelt upon, instead of its first element or radical part. This defect is not unfrequently carried to the extreme in singing, of passing over not merely the radical portion of a vowel, but of employing even the following consonants to sustain a sound upon. For example the words "fire, adm*ire*, ret*ire*," and others similar, are rendered fir - - e, des*ir* - - e, &c., instead of fi - - - re, des*i* - - - re.

LXXIV. Consonants.—To insure good articulation, the consonants must be quickly, distinctly, and forcibly uttered. There is nothing in the circumstance of having the organs of the voice employed in producing a musical sound, which need interfere at all with those required for articulation. The location of the two are so remote from each other, that if both are confined to their respective offices, no hindrance will be found to exist against a clear and easy articulation while singing, any more than in speaking.

LXXVI. Emphasis.—If poetry is necessary for any other purpose in singing than to be used as the seven syllables are, merely for singing tunes to, it is certainly of importance that it should be expressed in such a manner as to convey to the mind the true import of the sentiment which it embodies. To this end, let it receive that attention in singing which its importance demands.

LXXVII. Pauses.—When it is said of a note in music, that it should receive a given amount of time, the expression must not be understood in an unqualified sense. In singing tunes by the syllables, (Do, Re, &c.) this would then be the case; but, as we depart from the rules of Accent in music when necessary, to accommodate that of poetry; so with respect to pauses. Whenever the punctuation, or sense of language, indicates a pause, it can generally be produced by shortening the word preceding it without interrupting the time. Sometimes, however, the rhetorical construction of a sentence may be such as to require a temporary suspension of the time. In the following lines, at the dash preceding the final word ("deny"), a suspension of the time would be necessary to give effect to the sentence.

"The good we ask not, Father, grant,—
The ills we ask, — deny."

LXXVIII. Musical Practice.—In order to sustain Choir Singing efficiently, it is highly important that singers meet frequently for practice. And while doing this let the time devoted to the object be spent faithfully, with close attention to the subject as a study, and not as an occasion for recreation. And finally, never at any time, or on any occasion however trivial, allow the habit of singing carelessly, without regard to style or rule, as it impairs the taste, and renders one liable to retrograde in their general musical attainment.

EXPLANATION OF MUSICAL TERMS.

Solo. The four parts from here. Cres.

This tune should in no case be attempted by a class, or large choir. It is of far too DELICATE a character to be sung correctly by more than four good voices. The effect will be good to sing the Treble and Tenor alone, both by Tenor voices, if the four parts are played in accompaniment on a piano or organ. Or the Treble alone may sing the first two strains, accompanied by the parts on the piano or organ. The chromatic intervals must be sung with care and accuracy to give good effect.

V. C. T.
Words by H. H. HAWLEY.

1. There is a hope, a bles - sed hope, More pre - cious and more bright Than all the joy - less mock - e - ry The world es - teems de - light.
2. There is a star, a love - ly star, That lights the dark - est gloom, And sheds a peace - ful ra - diance o'er The pros - pects of the tomb.
3. There is a voice, a cheer - ing voice, That lifts the soul a - bove, Dis - pels the pain - ful, anx - ious doubt, And whis - pers, "God is love."
4. That voice, a - loud from Cal-vary's height, Pro-claims the soul for - given; That star is Rev - e - la - tion's light; That hope, the hope of heaven.

Observe that the tune commences on the Dominant Chord without the third: consequently the parts do not pitch upon intervals founded on the Tonic Chord.

V. C. T.
Words by W. B. O. PEABODY,
Late of Springfield, Mass.

1. Be - hold the west - ern eve - ning light! It melts in deep'ning gloom; So calm - ly Chris - tians sink a - way, De - scend - ing to the tomb.
2. The winds breathe low; the withering leaf Scarce whispers from the tree; So gen - tly flows the part - ing breath, When good men cease to be.

(Sing small notes to 2d, 3d and 4th verses.)

3. How beau - ti - ful on all the hills The crim - son light is shed! 'Tis like the peace the Chris - tian gives, To mourn - ers round his bed.
4. How mild - ly on the wan-dering cloud, The sun - set beam is cast! 'Tis like the mem - ory left be - hind, When loved ones breathe their last.

1. Oh, 'twas a joy - ful sound to hear Our tribes de - vout - ly say, "Up, Is - rael, to the tem - ple haste, And keep your fes - tal day!"
2. At Sa - lem's courts we must ap - pear, With our as - sem-bled powers, In strong and beau - teous or - der ranged Like her u - ni - ted towers.

f

The peculiarity of the present arrangement of this piece is, that in the third and fourth strains some one part has two eighths to a beat. Melodies do not often admit of such harmonic construction. This, in contrast with "Mear" as generally known, will give it quite a new character.

MUSICAL WORKS BY V. C. TAYLOR.

Published by Hawley, Fuller & Co., Utica, N. Y.

TAYLOR'S SACRED MINSTREL: OR AMERICAN CHURCH M[illegible] A NEW COLLECTION OF PSALM AND HYMN TU[illegible]ES, ADAPTED TO THE VARIOUS METRES N[illegible]W IN [illegible]E [illegible] CHURCHES, [illegible] CHANTS, AND OTHER PIECES, FOR THE USE OF CHOIRS, CONGREGATIONS, SINGING [illegible] SOCIETIES, SOCIAL SACRED MUSIC CIRCLES, AND PRIVATE DEVOTION; CONTAINING BETWEEN THREE [illegible] NEW PIECES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED, NOW FOR THE FIRST TIME PRINTED IN THE AMERICAN [illegible] EUROPEAN COMPOSERS.

THE GOLDEN LYRE: A NEW COLLECTION OF CHURCH MUSIC, ADAPTED TO THE VARIOUS METRES OF PSALMODY IN CHURCH USE; TOGETHER WITH A NEW AND EXTENSIVE VARIETY OF ANTHEMS, [illegible] AND CHANTS, FOR CHOIRS, SINGING CLASSES, MUSICAL ASSOCIATIONS, AND SOCIAL SACRED MUSIC CIRCLES.

From H. M. RICHARDSON, Professor of Music.

MADISON UNIVERSITY, HAMILTON, N. Y.

"In connection with two or three members of the Choir under my direction, I have just looked through the portion of 'The Golden Lyre' which you had the kindness to [illegible]; and I hasten not to express my opinion that 'The Lyre,' when issued, will be received [illegible] by the musical public, and that it will be the most admired by those [illegible] most highly cultivated. While many choirs are unable either to perfor[illegible] most gems in the Lyre, yet such will find in it music adapted to their capac[illegible] at the same time [illegible] calculated to inspire them with a finer and more ch[illegible]ace, that the standard of Church Music throughout the country is far [illegible] and [illegible] in this important and delightful [illegible] of divine worship, I shall rejoice to see [illegible] work meet [illegible] neral favor and hearty reception to which its merits entitle it.—August 5th, 1850."

From Mr. D. B. SHELLEY, Rome, N. Y., for more than fifteen years an eminently successful teacher of Sacred Music:—"I have exam[illegible] the specimen sheets of 'The Golden Lyre' which you sent me, and can truly say I am pleased with [illegible] The success which attended the author's first book, 'The Sacred Minstrel,' was unprecedented; and from the character of this new work, so far as I have seen it, I think its merits should secure for it a more extensive circulation than any other Church Music Book [illegible] The music is plain and easy to understood, but as with all scientific music requires study in order to [illegible] it, (as it should be,) with [illegible] to the author's meaning and intent. Such music cannot fail to [illegible] the public taste.—July 15th, 1850."

TAYLOR'S CHORAL [illegible]: A NEW COLLECTION OF CHOIRS, ANTHEMS, QUARTETTS, TRIOS, DUETS, AND SOLOS, ORIGINAL AND SELECT, [illegible] SINGING SCHOOLS, CHOIRS, AND SOCIAL MUSICAL CIRCLES.

220 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, with [illegible] leco back. Price $1, or $10.50 per dozen.

Mr. Taylor was induced [illegible] per this work [illegible] citation of musical friends, who often returned to him there was nothing of recent [illegible] which answered all the exigencies of the musical community. It is true, several [illegible] books have been published in this country, one or two of which have very deservedly [illegible] considerable degree of popularity, but of those recently issued, the most of the music is selected from [illegible] other works of foreign composers, and is generally unmeaning, on account of a want of [illegible] with the remainder of the work; or so difficult of execution as to be totally useless to the majority of singers. Original anthems by American authors possessing musical merit, and at the same time [illegible] and practicable for ordinary amateur performers, have, up to this time, been exceedingly rare. No author in this country, we believe, has written so many, as Mr. Taylor. He has applied his utmost [illegible] in the production of this work, and we offer it to the friends of music without fear [illegible] their approbation, provided they will study the character of its music, and follow [illegible] accompanying directions for its performance.

The book contains 67 pieces of Music, consisting of Odes, Hymns, Peter, Quartetts, Anthems, Choruses, &c., about 40 of which are original, and the balance selected from the works of the best authors, both ancient and modern.

It will furnish a Choir, or Musical Society with the [illegible] practice, and for a Concert or series of Concerts; and also with an [illegible] from which to make the most appropriate selections for [illegible] occasions, such as Thanksgiving, Dedications, Ordinations, &c.

The music [illegible] is very [illegible] from the most simple to the most grand and sublime, from the [illegible] to the most stirring and animating; and while much of the [illegible] is very [illegible] and of the highest order, the difficulties of the progression, where [illegible] occur, are [illegible] the parts so as not to carry the performance above the capacity [illegible] many readers of music.

character, without much exception, of the original Church Music published in this country for the past thirty years, that a "new book," by a native author, has at length come to excite much the same emotions in the mind of a musical virtuoso, that a pack of cards used to inflict upon the vigilant imaginations of our puritan forefathers. He sees beneath those long and narrow covers a great waste of paper, and time; a debauchment of the public taste and of musical morals; barbarous plagiarisms, and more barbarous arrangements; ignorant infringements of musical law, order, and common sense; and, in short, every other analogous horror which [illegible] above familiar illustration may apply. To the truth of these statements every thorough-bred musician will bear witness. Yet, now and then among the issues of these associations, there is to be found here and there among the vast pile of rubbish a work of merit deserving a better fate than awaits the mass with which, (sad that it should be so, because of its "sacred" character,) it is unfortunately associated. Among these few native works of merit we are happy to rank "Taylor's Choral Anthems;" a work which bears the impress of much thought and careful study. Mr. Taylor has gathered within the compass of two hundred and fifty odd pages, between sixty and seventy popular pieces by various composers; among these are several contributions of his own. The anthems, "Sing unto God," and "O Sing to Jehovah," pp 73 and 75, evince both [illegible] and skill, with proper study, Mr. T. could contribute much towards [illegible] of that spasmodic which a frantic and hasty press, in the "Church Music" line, has entailed upon [illegible] Mr. T.'s compositions in this work can lay a breadth and force which has [illegible] description by native composers who have preceded him. [illegible] of all encouragement and commendation.

In fine, we know of no similar native work that we can so confidently recommend to choirs.—The Message Bird.

Resolved, That the new publication, "Choral Anthems," by V. C. Taylor, is a book of rare excellence, and we commend it to Musical Societies as a work [illegible] will not disappoint their [illegible] expectations.—Proceedings of the Hudson River Musical Convention, Poughkeepsie, April 16th, 1850.

In several important respects it is well [illegible] book of choirs and private circles. The author, although not confining his selections to pieces [illegible] too simple or too pretentious, has [illegible] rather on those requiring taste and expression. Many [illegible] pieces, which upon a hasty perusal [illegible] the embellishments as very pretty and [illegible], will be found [illegible] and heavy, to expand into richness and beauty.—New York Tribune.

This is decidedly the gem of musical publications. It contains the best arranged Anthems and set pieces of any work extant, calculated to suit all, and so [illegible] as to produce the best possible effect.—New Jersey Weekly Visitor, Feb. 15, 1850.

About one half the pieces are original, and some of them [illegible] that the author is one of the best composers in the country.—Otsego Democrat.

We are glad to see that this gentleman is attracting great attention in the musical world, and acquiring that high rank among American composers, to which he is so [illegible] entitled. There is richness and beauty in the productions of his pen, seldom found in [illegible] music.—The Gazette.

Several of Mr. Taylor's own compositions are interspersed, and the collection shows care and judgment. Among those marked V. C. T. we may distinguish the Reproof, the [illegible] Vine, all of vigor and animation. Well sung, it would be admirable [illegible] difficult of execution. His popular duett "Give the Music," is also reprinted here with some slight changes. Altogether it is a collection that must be valuable to singers, as containing also [illegible] of the old composers.—Literary World.

Mr. Taylor is an original genius, both in Composition and in Harmony. His musical ideas are exceedingly pleasing, and are always admired in proportion as they are studied and comprehended. In his harmony some find what the [illegible] fault, because it does not conform to the commonly received rules of that science. The like violations in Rossini, Mendelssohn, or Neukomm, would be considered as contributing to their most striking effects, and were abundant applause.—From Communication to the Semi and Daily Times Democrat, by J. [illegible], Professor of Music.

V. C. TAYLOR'S MUSIC BOOKS.—We have critically examined the [illegible] of V. C. Taylor, and are free to say that it is with the greatest pleasure that we record our hearty [illegible] to the [illegible] so [illegible] sent out of the [illegible] The "Choral Anthems" [illegible] the library of every professional [illegible] The music throughout is of the highest style of composition and [illegible] due regard to all the rules of true harmony. It is not the [illegible] of dish water trash which [illegible] has been [illegible] under the [illegible] of some pompous [illegible] society, [illegible] all the pure and vibrant [illegible] for the sake of gain to [illegible] and [illegible] harmonizers; but music [illegible] which every [illegible] grow [illegible] better by [illegible] acquaintance.—Hancock Gazette.
